REFERENCE EXAMPLES FOR ELECTRONIC ARTICLES

Before you cite an electronic article, you need to know if the electronic article has a doi (digital object identifier). The doi # can be found on the abstract page in the databases or on the article.

Electronic articles generally follow the same rules as print articles. However, sometimes there may not be page numbers listed (especially if the journal is only available electronically). Also, sometimes articles that are electronic are available before their print versions, this is usually noted in the reference by placing the phrase Advanced online publication, after the journal title, but before the doi.
Journal article with a doi #

Journal article without a doi#

If the article does NOT have a DOI you are to use the URL of the journal/magazine/newspaper homepage. (You may need to do a web search to find this information).

IN TEXT CITATIONS

APA style uses the author and date when citing sources in the text. If you include the author’s name in the narrative, you only need to include the year in parentheses. If you don’t include the author’s name in the narrative, then you put it and the year in parentheses. There is a wonderful chart on page 177 of the manual that helps to explain these rules.

Ex. Kent State University (2015) took a proactive approach to ……
